American Legion And Auxiliary Hold Installation Service

The elected members of our local chapter of American Legion and its Auxiliary met for a joint installation Monday evening at Alexander Hall.

Mrs. Marguerite Gray of Shelburne Falls, District President of the County American Legion Auxiliary, presided at the installing officer for the Northfield Auxiliary, with Charles Delaney of Shelburne Falls, Commander of the District Council, in behalf of the Haven H. Spencer Post No. 179.

Visiting delegate members from Shelburne Falls and Turners Falls accompanied these officers. Mrs. Grethén Beauvion, President of the Turners Falls organization and recently elected District Sargeant-at-Arms assisted Mrs. Gray. The Auxiliary is grateful to Mrs. Eunice Messer of Shelburne Falls for the musical entertainment.

Finally, owing to sickness and other unforeseen circumstances which prevented most of the new Legion officers from being present, the Legion installation had to be postponed until a later date.

At the close of the installation Mrs. Gray gave a very interesting account of her trip to the National Convention at Portland, Oregon with its many thrilling sights overland, through California and the North Pacific States.

Mrs. Katherine Payson was presented a Past Presidents' pin in grateful appreciation of her successful term of office for the Auxiliary. Mrs. Payson thanked her colleagues and friends who have helped to contribute to the progress and fraternal life of the Auxiliary and further outlined in brief many experiences in her welfare work among local members of the American Legion and other disabled World War Veterans and their families.

The hall was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves, ferns and flowers. After the installation refreshments and card playing were enjoyed.

Auxiliary members installed were: President, Mrs. Vivian Severance; Vice President, Mrs. Dorothy Bigelow; Secretary, Mrs. Warren Whitman; Treasurer, Miss Marion Holton; Chaplain, Mrs. Katherine Payson; Historian, Mrs. Sarah Finch; Sargeant-at-Arms Mrs. Alfreda Mattern.

Will You Meet Dr. and Mrs. Rees Of Rochester N. Y.

Rev. Milton S. Rees, D. D., of Rochester, N. Y., who will begin a series of special meetings at the Trinitarian Church on Sunday November 6, is not a stranger to Northfield. He has attended for many years the General Conference held here every August, and has been one of the speakers. His addresses have been reported in the Record of Christian Work.

Born in central New York, he was converted to God at the age of 14, and at once united with the church and became active in its work. In due time he entered the ministry. His success as a pastor in winning accessions to church membership turned his life into the larger evangelistic field.

Dr. Rees has traveled widely in America, and has made three trips abroad. He has visited the Holy Land twice.

His wide contacts and travels have given him an understanding of people. His message appeal to both head and heart. He is a deep student of the Bible, and presses home the truth with power, and eloquence.

In most places he visits he conducts union meetings, and one proof of his success has been his repeated return visits. Thus he has held nine campaigns in his own city of Rochester, twenty-one in Greater Boston, etc.

Mrs. Rees directs the music at his meetings with great acceptability.

The Northfield meetings have received the indorsement of the evangelistic committee of the Franklin County Association of Churches and Ministers, who are urging their whole constituency to support the work and spread the interest throughout the county.

Dr. Rees will preach at the morning service on November 6 at the Trinitarian Church, and again in the evening at 7:30. There will be evening meetings at 7:30 every day except Saturday. Bible readings will be held Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at 3, a women's meeting on Thursday at the same hour, and a young people's meeting on Friday at the close of school.

An invitation will be extended to the churches in nearby towns to send delegations to the meetings, when seats will be reserved for them. Also, the social committee of the church will serve tea and coffee at 6 o'clock to those who bring their own basket suppers and wait over for the evening meetings.

A reception will be tendered to Mrs. Rees by the choir on Saturday evening November 5, when an understanding of her desires may be had, and perhaps a brief rehearsal of some hymns she will use.

Shear Nonserge

Wife (at bath room door): Dinner's on the table, John. Hurry and finish your bath.

Husband: Coming, dear! Just one more stanza and I'm through.

Flo: How sweet of you to back that horse because it had the same name as mine.

Jim: It had the same habits, too. It got there half an hour late.

Mother: Come to bed, Geraldine. Geraldine: I'm all wrapped up in a problem.

Mother: Well, tell your problem to go home.

Disastrous Fire Again Calls Firemen To West Side Of River

A disastrous fire summoned the firemen last Monday evening to West Northfield where the house, sheds and barn of Paul Duda on the road opposite the large dairy farm of Arthur H. Bolton were practically destroyed. Only a portion of the house was left standing and parts of that badly charred beyond its usefulness. Mr. and Mrs. Duda had left the house after the supper meal to visit friends leaving the children at home.

These were in the house reading at the table, two had gone to bed and the daughter had just finished the work of the dishes when the loud bark of the dog on the piazza attracted their attention. Going to the door they found the sheds at the rear of the house in flames and rushing toward the barn. The daughter got out the children at once and a passer by rushed to the Boltons to give the alarm to the fire department.

George and Horace Bolton with neighbors went to the house and carried out the furniture while the fire spread and the entire barn was a mass of flames. The Northfield Fire Department arrived promptly and the fire truck was driven across the field to the bank of the river and pumped a stream through some eight hundred feet of hose, the water being directed to save the house. The barn was entirely consumed with its contents including two pigs. The horse and two cows of Mr. Duda's were in the pasture. The loss is estimated at about $3500. Insurance of $4000 was carried. The property was purchased some years ago by Mr. Duda from Mrs. Motchman who now resides in Springfield and who holds a mortgage upon the premises. Mr. and Mrs. Duda returned home late in the evening after their visit with friends to discover their loss. The fire started in the shed directly back of the house and rapidly communicated with the attached buildings. The cause is not known. For the present the Duda family will make their home with relatives on the Northfield Farms meadow.

Connecticut Valley Unitarian Conference

All Souls Church at Greenfield was the host last Sunday to the 70th annual meeting of the Connecticut Valley conference of Unitarian-Congregational and other Christian churches. Many of the delegates came in time for the morning service at which Rev. Charles R. Joy of Boston preached on "The Free Church of America."

Many members of the Northfield Church were in attendance. The sessions closed in the evening with an address by Dr. Louis C. Cornish, president of the American Unitarian association, and election of officers. George A. Robinson of West Hartford, Conn., was chosen to succeed Edgar Burr Smith of Greenfield as conference president. Other officers chosen were: Dr. Frederick W. Plummer of Northampton and Alfred A. Beauregard of Springfield, vice-presidents; Mrs. Clarence Burt of Greenfield, treasurer; Harry C. Freeman of Brattleboro, Vt., Miss Emilie M. Plimpton of Florence, Rev. Robert J. Rabbie of Greenfield, and Mrs. Henry G. Ives of Pittsfield, directors.

Herbert C. Parsons, who is president of the Unitarian Laymen's league, emphasized the service that a liberal church can perform in a community and said the church makes a place for itself and wins honor as it interests itself in social welfare, economy, relief, the lessening of crime and other factors that affect community life. The church that recognizes the brotherhood of man by seeking to correct evils in the life of society and will give itself to the study of present day difficulties can be a great force in the community, he declared.

The address which provoked most discussion in the Laymen's league meeting was one by James T. Cleland, instructor in religion at Amherst college, who said that the churches in general do not stand for anything and, as an instance, absence of the churches from his own town of Amherst would not result in any marked difference in the life of the community. The church today, he declared is inisipid and stands for compromise, not like its leader, Jesus Christ.

The speaker asked how many ministers deal with particular problems of the community instead of generalities which offend no one. "Jesus did not preach thus. It is ethical indolence that is keeping people out of churches," Mr. Cleland is a Presbyterian.

Dr. Cornish in his evening address reviewed the progress of Unitarianism in the world.

Stray Bullets Fly From Shooting Irons In Hands Of Boys

Stray shots from guns in the hands of boys are reported to have done serious damage and injury in two of our neighboring villages. At Bernardston a stray shot fired from a .38 calibre rifle by an 18-year-old Bernardston boy late Monday forenoon entered the downstairs apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Phelps but caused no personal injury and did only slight property damage.

The youth, according to State Patrolman Walter Burke of the Shelburne Falls barracks, had taken away his father's rifle to frighten a flock of birds in the corn field at the rear of the Herbert Slate home. The stray bullet entered the south wall of the Phelps apartment, tore plaster from the wall, passed through a door casing and lodged in the opposite wall. No one was in the room at the time of the firing but residents of the other part of the building heard the shot and became alarmed.

At Wilmington Vt. Sheriff Patrick J. O'Keefe Tuesday investigated the shooting of Mrs. Mary Haskins of that town, who was struck in one leg by a stray bullet while she was walking on Main Street, Wilmington, and who was brought to the Memorial Hospital at Brattleboro.

Sheriff O'Keefe took with him the bullet, which had fractured both bones in the lower leg. He found that James Moran, 18, of Wilmington, was in possession of a rifle of the same calibre.

Moran said his gun was discharged near Wilmington village and he heard a woman scream. The gun and bullet will be sent to Boston Police headquarters to determine whether the bullet was fired from that rifle.

Grenfell Lecture Well Attended

The illustrated lecture concerning the work of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, internationally known missionary, who was inspired to do his Labrador relief work by the late Dwight L. Moody, was given before a gathering of 150 persons in the town hall Tuesday night by Prof. Fred C. Sears of the Massachusetts State College of Amherst. Prof. Sears is Dr. Grenfell's photographer and horticulturist.

The meeting, sponsored by the Pine street 4-H club, was primarily in the interest of the bazaar to be held at a Boston hotel the latter part of November for the benefit of Dr. Grenfell's work. The club has constructed and is offering for sale on the Northfield table at the bazaar a number of bird feeders and toys. Proceeds from the lecture will also benefit the fund. Other community organizations will complete the offering.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Field are the club leaders, while Mrs. Amberg G. Moody, a close friend of Dr. Grenfell, is an ardent enthusiast of the club.

EDITORIAL

"I believe that every thoughtful citizen, whether he be an employer or a working man, is rapidly coming to the definite conclusion that had it not been for the foresight and persistent efforts of President Hoover, this country would be in an infinitely worse position than it now is. The question which every voter must seriously consider is, shall we change leaders on the way up?"

—Silas Strawn.

The Census Bureau estimates that the number of persons in the United States who will be of voting age on election day, November 8, and who are not disqualified from voting by reason of being aliens, will be slightly more than 70,000,000. The Bureau explains, however, that this figure covers all the potential voters, but it does not mean that the entire 70,000,000 will be actually eligible to vote, since local and state regulations will bar many from the polls. In some states, for instance, poll taxes must be a certain number of months in advance of the election, or the voter is barred from balloting, and a wide variety of restrictions are imposed by many states. These restrictions cut down materially the total number of those who are eligible to vote.

So much is being said these days in regard to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment that it is wise perhaps for us to read just how we are to get a repeal, here is the wording of Article V of the Constitution providing for amendment.

Article V of the Constitution provides for two methods of amending: (a) The Congress, two-thirds of both houses agreeing, may propose an amendment which may be submitted either to the legislatures of the several states or to conventions chosen by each state as the Congress may see fit to determine; or (b) The initiative may be taken by the states and if the legislatures of two-thirds of the states make application to the Congress, the latter shall then call a convention to consider the proposed amendment; but no amendment shall be deemed a part of the Constitution unless it has been ratified in three-fourths of the states either by the legislatures or state conventions as the Congress may designate.

To repeal therefore will be a long and tedious operation and we will wait with patience. The only possible short cut to repeal will be by making the Eighteenth Amendment inoperative by a repeal of the Volstead law or its modification by a majority vote of the Congress. Or Congress may vote to withhold necessary appropriations for the enforcement of national prohibition.

But will Congress do it? We shall see after the roll call of the next Congress.

Honorable Allen T. Treadway, who has so ably represented the First Congressional District of Massachusetts, for several terms is a candidate for re-election this year. It is a great pleasure for us to acknowledge the splendid work our Congressman has done for the District, and the whole country.

In thinking of Mr. Treadway the first thought naturally is of his loyalty to his constituents, his District, and his state. A Democratic Congressman once said of him, "I have never known any man who has been more faithful and more consistent in favor of everything that his constituents want."

We recall the many expressions of gratitude we have heard from those for whom Mr. Treadway accomplished desired results in matters before Government Departments and Bureaus.

We all know the value of legislative experience in Congress. This Mr. Treadway has to an unusual extent. Starting in the Massachusetts Legislature in 1904, passing to the State Senate in 1908, becoming its President in 1909, and in 1912 going to Congress. There he has risen to a position of great responsibility and importance. For several years ranking member of the powerful Ways and Means committee, and by virtue of that position, one of the five House Conference members. Mr. Treadway's vast knowledge of the tariff is conceded by every one. He has had a large part in framing the last two tariff acts which have been so beneficial to the United States in general and particularly to New England. He has been the one advocate on the Ways and Means committee of the interests of New England on this all-important subject.

Congressman Treadway, has worked for us, and we now have an opportunity to show our appreciation by working for him.

The announcement that the Christmas seal for 1932 has been issued and soon will be ready for distribution through local Committees even in Northfield makes us mindful of all the good these stamps have accomplished since they were first issued.

The first poster in the United States to suggest the use of Christmas seals to raise money to fight tuberculosis was Jacob Kila, the noted author, editor and settlement worker. In an article in the Outlook in 1907 after receiving a stamp issued in Denmark he wrote regarding it and how successful the scheme had worked in Denmark in raising money for a hospital for tuberculosis children.

This article came to the attention of Emily Blaisell of Wilmington, Delaware, who decided to use seals as a means of raising money for a similar hospital on the banks of the Brandywine River. She designed the first seal, sold during the Christmas holidays of 1907.

The next year the project became national and ever since the sale of Christmas seals to aid in the fight against tuberculosis has continued. Northfield always has supported their sales and Northfield will do so again this year.

Herbert Hoover should be re-elected President and everywhere we find thinking men and women inclined to this determination.

President Hoover has kept every promise he made the American people when he received their votes four years ago, and—in addition to keeping his promises he has supplied a superb leadership for the nation during the most serious financial and industrial depression since the close of the Civil war; has met the situation squarely; has planned boldly but wisely for national recovery, and has set us again on a safe road to better conditions.

Therefore, why change, or substitute in this trying period, when success is so near at hand. The darkness is being dispelled and daylight is appearing. No matter what his political faith, Hoover, the man, our first citizen, should be continued in office as President by the suffrage of the people.

Poet's Corner

ELECTION CALL

America, my country, it is time to shorten sail;
The tides are running swift in froth and foam;
The ship of state is reeling as she wakens to the gale;
There is danger in the deep for those who roam.

Thank God your beams are sturdy,
And your masthead towers high—
Of justice and of honour were they wrought;
No mutiny of purpose shall your destiny deny,
Nor bring your faithful journeying to naught.

The sky is torn with portents, and the evening star is dim,
And the tempest rocks the good ship on her keel
And beats upon the pilot,—may God remember him—
Whose steady hand is strong upon the wheel.

He holds the future calmly, whatever winds there be;
His heart is straining toward the harbor light:
He, only, knows the channel in this wild, uncharted sea,—
Would you dare to change your pilot in the night?
—WINIFRED ADAMS BURR.
(In Athol Transcript.)

MIGHT BE WORSE

When y' get up in th' mornin' with an ugly sort o' grouch,
Forgettin' all th' pleasant dreams that hovered 'round yer couch,
When y'd like t' kill yer neighbor and upset th' world that is;
An' put yer brother merchant man completely out o' biz—
Just remember, yer're an atom in this great big universe,
An' thank yer Lord that yer're alive—conditions might be worse.
—ANON.

HUMAN INTEREST

The poet said, "I cannot muse in all this whirl and noise
Of chattering men in honking cars,
And shouting girls and boys.

If I could live quite undisturbed,
And keep just by myself,
What gems of literature I'd write
To win great fame and wealth!"

So he traveled up a mountain side
Far from all heat and din,
With no companions but the clouds,
The trees, the rocks, the winds.

For many weeks he lingered wrote,
A thousand poems he wrote,
Then sent them to his publishers.
They penned this little note.

"Dear Mr. Poet, we much regret
Your writings to return.
But they lack human interest,
And are only fit to burn."

The writer man then tore his hair,
He swore, he stamped, he raged,
No one was there to see or hear
The act he wildly staged.

He gathered paper, pen and ink,
Then rushed back into town,
Wrote of the common ways of men,
And so won great renown.

Doris Hildreth Wheeler.

PLACES

Places I love come back to me like music,
Hush me and heal me when I am very tired;
I see the oak woods at Saxton's flaming.

In a flare of crimson by the frost newly fired;
And I am thirsty for the spring in the valley
As for a kiss ungiven and long desired.

I know a bright world of 'mowy hills at Boonton,
A blue and white dazzling light on everyting one sees,
The ice-covered branches of the hemlocks sparkle.

Bending low and tinkling in the sharp thin breeze,
And iridescent crystals fall and crackle on the snow-crust
With the Winter sun drawing cold blue shadows from the trees.

Violet now, in veil on veil of evening
The hills across from Cromwell grow dreamy and far;
A wood thrush is singing soft as a viol.

In the heart of the hollow where the dark pools are;
The primrose has opened her pale yellow flower
And heaven is lighting star after star.

Places I love come back to me like music—
Midcoast, midnight, the waves buzz drowsily;
In the ship's deep churning the eerie phosphorescence

Is like the souls of people who were drowned at sea,
And I can hear a man's voice, speaking hushed, insistent,
At midnight, in midcoast, hour on hour to me.
—Sara Teasdale.

Hon. Gaspar G. Bacon A Life Sketch

Hon. Gaspar G. Bacon, President of the Massachusetts Senate, who is now seeking the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, was born in Jamaica Plain, March 7, 1886, the son of an old and distinguished New England family.

The founder of the house of Bacon, Nathaniel Bacon, came from England to Barnstable in Massachusetts in 1639. Three years later he built a home there, in which he and his descendants lived for 187 years. The old homestead has continued in the family through succeeding generations since 1642.

Senator Bacon's father, the late Robert Bacon, was Secretary of State in the cabinet of President Roosevelt, and later became Ambassador to France. The Senator was graduated from Harvard College with the class of 1908, and from Harvard Law School in 1912. He married Priscilla Toland of Philadelphia and they have three sons, William, Gaspar and Robert.

GASPAR G. BACON
Republican Candidate
for Lieut.-Gov.

Educated for the law, Senator Bacon made a profound study of Constitutional Government, a subject on which he is a recognized authority. He is the author of "The Constitution of the United States," published by the Harvard University Press in 1928, and "Government and the Voter," published in 1931. He is a trustee and secretary of the Board of Trustees of Boston University, and is a director in the Massachusetts Society of Mental Hygiene.

Senator Bacon served as a private in the National Guard at the Mexican Border in 1916, and he enlisted as a private in the United States Army in May, 1917. He retired as a Major, 16th Field Artillery, at the close of the war. He was the first commander of the Michael J. O'Connell Post, American Legion, and was the first national treasurer of the Legion.

Always actively interested in politics, Senator Bacon was a delegate to the Republican National Convention of 1920, and an alternate-at-large to the Republican National Convention of 1932. He was elected to the Massachusetts Senate in 1924 and has served for four consecutive terms, the last two of which he has been the President of the Senate.

The late President Theodore Roosevelt, in a tribute to Senator Bacon, wrote: "I can vouch for Gaspar Bacon in every way: in courage, character, intellect and bodily vigor. He represents the type we think of when we speak of a soldier and a gentleman."

In announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, Senator Bacon said:

"I believe that in these difficult times, more than ever before, experience in government, sincerity of purpose, and a firm determination to discuss all issues frankly and without equivocation and without resorting to the usual political generalities and platitudes is vitally necessary. The people are looking for facts, not fantasy or subterfuge."

"The issue of the moment is the reduction of the cost of government. I pledge myself to meet this issue squarely, and to use my best endeavors to eliminate all extravagance in the State of Massachusetts, to oppose all projects which are not immediately essential and to curtail expenditures wherever possible without impairing unduly any state activity."

As a public servant, Senator Bacon stands for sound, practical government measures. He stands for government by a responsible majority, not by selfish minorities, for less legislation, fewer laws better enforced, for the protection of the weak and unorganized.

In a recent speech in the Senate he said: "The weak and unorganized are entitled to the same consideration as the strong and the organized. The poor are no less citizens than the rich. Employee and employer are both equal under the law. One cannot be benefited by neglecting the other. We should legislate for the good of all the people, and not for any special group, interest or locality."

Hunters In Woods

Secure Some Pheasants

The opening of the hunting season began well here with a number of local residents in the field. The largest number of pheasants were found in the meadows at Northfield Farms, some ten being bagged the first day.

A few out of town hunters have been seen. Thus far the hunters have conducted themselves well and no criticism has been heard from any source and the usual amount of land has remained posted and hunters are observing the trespass notices.

Why The President Should Be Elected

The prize of one hundred dollars offered by Grenville Kleiser for the best essay on: "Why President Hoover Should Be Re-elected," has been won by Mr. A. C. Scott, 310 W. 16th Street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Following is the winning essay: "If ever a President of the United States deserved re-election on his record, President Hoover deserves re-election; and if ever our country needed the continued services of a President, the United States needs continued services of President Hoover."

"Confronted with greater difficulties than any other President has had to meet in times of peace, if not indeed in times of either war or peace, he has been the outstanding leader in preventing disaster and promoting recovery. From the first blast of the depression to the present hour, in every succeeding crisis, he has been more resourceful in suggestion, more prompt in initiative, and more effective in action than any other man or official, or all others put together."

"He closed the door to foreign immigration. He was the leading factor in maintaining wages for eighteen months, thus softening the first blow of the panic. He promoted public and private construction running into hundreds of millions of dollars and employing hundreds of thousands of men. He secured prompt and effectual relief of the drought-stricken states of 1930. Almost entirely upon his recommendation, Congress appropriated nearly one billion dollars for the relief of agriculture. He proposed and carried through the moratorium on foreign debts, saving Europe from complete collapse and our own country from untold disaster. In the face of general skepticism he instituted a surprisingly successful campaign against the hoarding panic of 1931. He organized the National Credit Corporation to allay the epidemic of bank failures and to support the banking credit of the nation."

Thus, one by one, he dealt with each new crisis. But the measure of his statesmanship was not yet taken. In December, 1931, he laid before the Congress a program of reconstruction and relief so complex, vast, and far-reaching, and in its implications so beneficial to all our people, that it must rank among the greatest achievements of any of our Presidents. Most of this program the President, with unequalled firmness and persistence, pushed through Congress. Stamping out meanwhile dangerous proposals that beset the way. Notwithstanding assertions to the contrary, this program was fundamentally for the relief of the common people—the victims of misfortune in country, town and city. Out of it came the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Loan Bank System, emergency relief through help to states and cities, enlarged relief to agriculture, the balancing of the budget, the ending of the outward flow of gold, the maintenance of the gold standard, and the return of confidence in our financial situation to our own people and to the world."

"President Hoover has grown in stature with the years until, in the words of the independent Democratic New York Times, he is 'every inch a President.' He is a stronger President than ever before. His experience is invaluable. He has not only achieved great good, but he has prevented great evil. He has stood like a rock against proposals that would have imperiled, if not wrecked, the financial structure of the government; and repeatedly, during the whole course of his administration, he has had to supply the courage which Congress lacked."

"And now, largely through the wisdom, the courage, and the statesmanship of the President, the country seems to have touched the verge of recovery. To change to untied leadership would be to risk reversal or dangerous modification of policies and processes just now coming into action and to invest the immediate future with an uncertainty peculiarly deplorable at this critical time."

"The issue of the moment is the reduction of the cost of government. I pledge myself to meet this issue squarely, and to use my best endeavors to eliminate all extravagance in the State of Massachusetts, to oppose all projects which are not immediately essential and to curtail expenditures wherever possible without impairing unduly any state activity."

As a public servant, Senator Bacon stands for sound, practical government measures. He stands for government by a responsible majority, not by selfish minorities, for less legislation, fewer laws better enforced, for the protection of the weak and unorganized.

In a recent speech in the Senate he said: "The weak and unorganized are entitled to the same consideration as the strong and the organized. The poor are no less citizens than the rich. Employee and employer are both equal under the law. One cannot be benefited by neglecting the other. We should legislate for the good of all the people, and not for any special group, interest or locality."

Massachusetts Fairs Of The Past Summer

Agricultural fairs of Massachusetts more than held their own in attendance and interest this year, according to the State Department of Agriculture. The fair season is now practically over.

In nearly every fair where rain did not interfere with the attendance, the records show some increase. The Eastern States Exposition showed an increase of about 5,000 over the previous year. Greenfield, Great Barrington and Sturbridge were others that materially exceeded their attendance of a year previous. The closing day at Topsfield was the largest on record.

One of the outstanding features of the fairs this year, was the increased interest in exhibits of fruit and vegetables in packages such as are used ordinarily in trade. There was a substantial increase in the number of exhibits of pecks of potatoes, instead of samples of three, also in exhibits of vegetables in bushel boxes. Brockton's record of 203 exhibits of vegetables in bushel boxes is the largest number of this class of exhibits ever shown in New England. At Topsfield more than a ton of squash was exhibited.

The same increased interest in exhibits in commercial packages was evident in the smaller fairs.

One of the biggest problems which the fairs management faced this year, was how to give the usual entertainment with reduced budgets. Nearly all the fairs managed to do this by cutting down slightly on the number of attractions, but retaining the old standards of excellence on what they did provide.

New 3 Cent Stamps To Be On Sale

Two new designs of three cent postage stamps will be on sale at the U. S. Post Offices this week making about eighteen different designs issued since the first of the year. The new stamps are in honor of William Penn and Daniel Webster.

This year exceeds all former years in this country in its type of stamp. Twelve of the new stamps were the Washington commemoratives, printing of which, with the exception of the three-cent purple similar to the two-cent stamp of the birthday issue has recently ceased. The other four commemoratives were the Lake Placid Olympic games, Arbor Day, and the two values of the Los Angeles Olympic games issue.

The William Penn stamp commemorates the 250th Anniversary of the arrival of Penn in America. The portrait of Penn, which forms the central design, is taken from an engraving of the painting from life, the original being in the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

The Webster stamp commemorates the 150th Anniversary of his birth, as he died in 1852, it will also honor the eightieth anniversary of his death.

His birthplace was in Franklin, which at the time of his birth was known as Salisbury. The chief design is a full-face portrait of the statesman and orator.

The Republican mass meeting in Greenfield last Thursday was well attended by Northfield men and women.

Franklin County Republicans numbering nearly 1000 packed Washington hall to listen to an array of candidates and ardent supporters of the party praise the administration of President Herbert Hoover and flay the promises of the Democratic nominee.

Long before the street parade headed by the public school band and a long line of automobiles with their occupants carrying red fire reached the town hall, nearly all the seats on the main floor were filled.

The rally was opened by Nathan Tufts, chairman of the Republican town committee of Greenfield. He turned the meeting over to Mr. Haigns after a few introductory remarks, who, before introducing the speakers urged all voters to cast Republican ballots Nov. 8.

Mrs. Arthur Devens Potter was the first speaker. She brought a message from the Republican state committee and predicted a Republican victory in November. Miss Margaret Barnard representing the Republican Women's club spoke briefly. Local and county candidates addressed the meeting briefly. They were: Gen. Frederick E. Pierce, Fred Dole and James Gunn all county district representative candidates, and Albert C. Bray, senate candidate.

Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the state senate and Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, was the outstanding speaker. After modestly referring to his own candidacy he launched on a scathing attack of the Democratic presidential nominee and his record as chief executive of the Empire state.

Cong. Allen T. Treadway received a flattering introduction and prolonged applause.

Cong. Treadway strongly assailed the Democratic management of the house of representatives and its general opposition to President Hoover and his policies of government.

He reviewed the political situation of today and appealed to the voters to support the complete Republican ticket at the coming election.

Richard Southall Grant of New York, a former official of the Navy Department when Gov. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the Navy was the next speaker and gave an intensely interesting address.

In the afternoon a reception was given the candidates by members of the Republican women's organizations at the home of Mrs. Mary Pratt Potter and many women from Northfield attended.

Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman was unable to be present, having been called to Boston after speaking at Holyoke, the night previous.

The "Market" News

A leading financial house of Springfield has just published this interesting bit of financial news—

"As this is being written the stock market appears to have completed a rally in what we consider is an incomplete down-trend. From a high point of 80 on the Dow-Jones industrial averages in September, the level of common stocks dipped to 58 ten days ago, from which spot a rally of eight points has so far materialized. We do not think the rally will be taken up later and have no idea that it is the beginning of a real upswing to new high levels. We advise no purchase here except for the purposes of bona fide long term investment.

There is only one basis upon which a genuine upward movement can be predicted at this time and that is on the expectancy of a Republican victory next month. If you think Hoover is to be the next President, you should buy stock at once and borrow money to do so. If not, we think you may be sure that you can acquire equities at a lower level."

For, just 21 years ago—on Nov. 8, 1911—the Chevrolet Motor Company was incorporated in Michigan for the manufacture and sale of automotive vehicles.

The first car ever to carry the name "Chevrolet" came out of an upstairs flat converted into a workshop in Detroit, and now, a generation later, the name has decorated more than 8,000,000 radiators of cars and trucks throughout the world.

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company has a past record of leading the industry in sales in three years out of the past five. For the 1932 year-to-date Chevrolet registrations outnumber the second highest make by approximately 100,000 units, indicating another year of hCvevrolet leadership and an increase in "firsts" to four years out of the past six.

Curiously enough, the first Chevrolet bore a basic resemblance to the modern product of the company in that Louis Chevrolet, famous race driver of another era, who did some experimental work on the first car and whose name it perpetuates, employed a six cylinder engine. The company's greatest comparative success came with this type of motor, built exclusively during the past three years, and now being copied by other entrants into the low priced market.

In another sense the early years of the company bear a strange parallel to modern days in that as early as 1915 Chevrolet was launched in the volume car field, where it was later to achieve leadership, with the introduction of the Model "490". This car, named for its price, was a sensation in its day, and production of it was continued for several years. This, incidentally, was the lowest priced Chevrolet ever on the market until the reduction of the base price on the 1931 series to $475. The present base price is $445. F. O. B. Flint.

After the formation of the company, a decade elapsed before 1,000,000 cars had been turned out. But since those early years, when Chevrolet was finding its place in an already large industry, the company has written a veritable Horatio Alger story of modern business growth.

Chevrolet became a part of the General Motors group in 1918, but only within the past decade have the swift strides to first place in the industry been achieved. In 1921, Chevrolet built only 4.5 per cent of all the passenger cars and trucks produced by the industry. At present one out of every three cars and trucks built is a Chevrolet Six.

In 1925 production for the first time passed the half-million mark in a single year. Two years later it exceeded one million cars in twelve months.

"TIGER SHARK"

Amazing in its growth, more dangerous than the hunting of wild animals in the tropical jungles, fraught with all the romance of man's intrepid conquest of the storm-swept seas, the tuna fishing industry has gone practically unknown in story, drama or motion picture until now.

"The most modern development in one of man's oldest known occupations," is the way one writer has described it. After twenty years, the glamour, romance and peril of the tuna fisheries have been fittingly embodied in a production by First National that promises to be one of the outstanding attractions of the current season.

"Tiger Shark," which has for its stars Edward G. Robinson and Richard Arlen, is the stirring saga of the tuna fisheries of the Pacific, and the fearless, daredevil fishermen who risk their lives many times a year on the shark-infested fishing grounds where the schools of roving tuna make their home.

No pains or expense have been spared by First National to make this a memorable production. Weeks were spent by the company, under the general direction of Howard Hawks, at the fishing grounds far off the Mexican coast, to obtain the thrilling action that helps to make "Tiger Shark" the most authentic picture of its kind ever produced.

Other days were devoted to the picturesque fishing villages that line the shores of the Pacific near San Diego, and to every other phase of the strange life that these people lead. With that grasp of the human and dramatic elements of a story that made his direction of such powerful pictures as "The Crowd Roars" and "Scarface" such indisputable hits, Howard Hawks has woven a story of human courage and human emotions around the lives of these hardy fisher-folk that promises to be among the finest pictures of the year.

In the role of Captain Mike Mascarena, the "tiger shark" of the little village and the finest fisherman of his day, Edward G. Robinson has the most colorful and dramatic role of his career. Richard Arlen, as Mike's first mate and pal, "Pipes" Boley, gives a performance that is bound to increase his popularity.

As the lovely orphan, Quita, Zita Johann, the young Hungarian stage star, is conspicuously different from the popular leading women of the screen. Her striking brunette beauty and her marked dramatic ability have full scope in a powerful role.

Taken from the original story, "Tuna," by Houston Branch, the screen play of "Tiger Shark" is the work of Wells Root. Tony Gaudio, one of the foremost photographers of the screen, was in complete charge of photography. The picture will be shown for the first time in Greenfield at the Lawler Theatre, for 4 days beginning next Sunday, Oct. 30.

BUCK JONES IN AUTO RACING ROLE

New Type of Action Film

Do Buck Jones' fans insist upon seeing him as a colorful Western hero, or will they enjoy the opportunity of watching Buck prove that he is just as entertaining in other types of pictures?

The answer will be revealed next week at the Lawler Theater, where the star's new Columbia action drama, "High Speed," is the feature attraction for 4 days, beginning Sunday, Oct. 30. Buck has a role entirely new to him, as a breezy young racing driver who strives hard to win a national racing contest and the heart of beautiful Loretta Sayers.

Jones replaces "Silver," his fleet-footed horse, with a speedy racing car. His familiar chaps are laid aside in favor of the coveralls of a speed driver. "High Speed" retains only the thrills and action of Buck's popular Columbia Western dramas.

Besides Loretta Sayers, who plays opposite the popular outdoor star, the cast includes Martin Faust, Pat O'Malley, Ward Bond in a comedy role; Wallace MacDonald, William Walling and Ed Le Saint. D. Ross Lederman directed "High Speed" from an original story by Harold Shumate.

Police Radio Equipment

Featured in "High Speed"

The police radio equipment, which broadcasts messages to cruising patrol cars, is featured in the plot of "High Speed," Columbia film coming to the Lawler Theater on Sunday, Oct. 30, for 4 days. This system, which proved so effective in about eighty large cities in the United States, has just recently been installed in New York and already remarkable results have been reported. Criminals have a hard time evading this astonishing system of follow-up.

It operates from a central broadcasting room to a group of radioed police cars, which are designated by numbers. Police radio headquarters broadcasts an alarm to a particular car; the designated car picks up the message and follows through.

The message that Buck Jones picks up in "High Speed," that sends him off on a thrill-packed adventure is:

"Police Department Calling: Car 14... Car 14... Bank bandits! Black Preston roadster number L129-67 and West on Main from Seventh and Pico! Step on it Bill! Car 14..."

Car 14 steps on it and into the midst of it! As the system operates on a very low wave length, the possibility of the messages being picked up by others than the police is avoided.

Buck Jones temporarily abandoned his horse "Silver" to make "High Speed," which features him as a daring auto race driver. Others in the cast are Loretta Sayers, Wallace MacDonald, William Walling and Pat O'Malley. D. Ross Lederman directed.

"THE NIGHT CLUB LADY"

First of New Mystery Series
 Coming to The Lawler Theatre, Greenfield

Detective mystery stories are the most popular form of fiction. Consequently, it is not surprising that the movies, closely following the barometer of public taste, invariably bring to the screen the best of these crime stories. Film audiences have seen Sherlock Holmes, Philo Vance, Craig Kennedy and Arsene Lupin depicted upon the screen, and now comes the latest popular detective of fiction, Thatcher Colt, product of the imagination of Anthony Abbot.

Thatcher Colt will be brought to the screen by Adolphe Menjou in a series of Columbia pictures, the first of which, "The Night Club Lady," will be the feature at the Lawler Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 3-4-5.

In the picture, Lola Carewe, played by Mayo Methot, is warned that her death will take place as the clock strikes the hour of midnight on New Year's Eve. And even though Thatcher Colt, New York police commissioner, and a dozen of his aides are with the doomed woman in her luxurious apartment at the time, she is killed according to schedule. Moreover, the killer seemingly has committed the so-called "perfect crime." The cause of death proves baffling even to medical science. One physician, in fact, diagnoses it as a heart attack. But Colt is not deceived. Slowly, patiently, shrewdly, he pursues his investigation even to the far corners of the earth, until, by a final ingenious coup, he solves the mystery.

Irving Cummings, who directed "In Old Arizona," "Attorney for the Defense" and other outstanding pictures, directed "The Night Club Lady."

Columbia has given Menjou a capable supporting cast, including Mayo Methot, Broadway stage favorite in the role of Lola Carewe, Skeets Gallagher, Ruthelma Stevens, Albert Conti, Blanche Frederici, Nat Pendleton, Greta Granstedt, Niles Welch and Gerald Fielding.

Zasu Pitts, Yearning for Tragic Role
 Cannot Shake Reputation as Comic

Zasu Pitts' wistful fluttering hands brings laughs. To Zasu, that's tragic. For she wants to be a tragedienne, not a comedienne.

Miss Pitts, featured with Jack Oakie, Thomas Meighan, Marian Nixon, William Collier, Sr., and William Boyd in "Madison Square Garden," a drama set against the background of kaleidoscopic life in Manhattan's famous center of civic, social and athletic activity, (now playing at the Garden Theatre) during the past few years has built up a tremendous following — as a comedienne.

It's a living, and a good one, playing comedy roles, and many of them she has played. She's been in so many pictures that she doesn't even remember their names.

But she still wants to play tragedy, and only tragedy has followed her efforts to follow her inclination.

A few years ago, for example, she was given the opportunity. She was cast as the mother in a war picture, and her role called for many a tear, many a sob.

The picture was previewed at a Los Angeles theater. The exhibitor, not knowing what it was all about, started his program off with a two-reel comedy starring — you've guessed it! — Zasu Pitts. When the feature began unwinding, the audience, still remembering the Pitts laughs in the comedy, kept on laughing each time she appeared. They failed to gather the seriousness of the role.

The film was sent back to the studios as the result, and all sequences in which she appeared were cut out.

She's still a comedienne in "Madison Square Garden." The picture deals with a group of people of diversified backgrounds who slip briefly into the action at the Garden, and out again, their lives changed by the events in which they have participated.

Cohan, making his talking-picture debut in "The Phantom President," political comedy coming to the Garden Theater Saturday found Hollywood, which he was seeing for the first time, a very familiar spot indeed. For, though he didn't know how its streets were laid out or what bus to take to get wherever he wanted to go, he did know practically every one in the film colony.

celebrity on his path, and has worked with others, already established when they came in contact with him.

KNEW STARS WHEN

Oddly enough, however, neither Claudette Colbert nor Jimmy Durante, featured with him in "The Phantom President," ever appeared with him on the stage, though both won their early laurels there.

But the list of present-day movie stars who saw stage work with Cohan is long.

John Barrymore had his first straight part on Broadway in Cohan's presentation of "The Fortune Hunter." Barrymore, in those days, was an actor of light comedy; he had not yet turned dramatic.

George Bancroft was a song and dance man, and a good one, too, in early Cohan shows. Bancroft's last musical for Cohan was "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly." He then left for a try in pictures.

Douglas Fairbanks appeared for several years as one of Cohan's leading men and, later, stars. His biggest hit, "Stop Thief," was a Cohan show.

Lionel Barrymore never played in a Cohan show but he was on the same vaudeville program in Philadelphia and Baltimore with Cohan.

Clark Gable is another who left Cohan to try his luck in pictures. When Cohan produced his own play, "Gambling," he starred Gable and sent him to Philadelphia to create the role. During the try-out engagement here, Gable received a film offer, and, rather than go into New York with "Gambling," left the play.

Thomas Meighan was made a star by Cohan and sent to London to play Cohan's original part in the production there of "Broadway Jones."

Miriam Hopkins received one of her earliest major stage breaks when Cohan cast her in "The Home Towners," and sent her with the company to Chicago in 1927 to open the newly-built Four Cohans Theater. She later returned to Broadway in the show.

When Cohan staged his play "Yellow," on Broadway, he used Chester Morris in one of the leading roles. In the cast, having his first Broadway engagement, was Spencer Tracy.

Cohan played with George Arliss in early shows, was with Charlotte Greenwood in a sketch at the Lambs Club and in musical comedy with William Collier.

HUSTON WITH HIM

Appearing under the Cohan banner likewise were Walter Huston and Kay Francis in "Elmer the Great." Later, they were to renew their team work in several motion pictures.

Edward G. Robinson was a young character actor for Cohan in a series of plays. He specialized in dialects and won great praise in "The Little Teacher."

Genevieve Tobin and her sister, Vivian, were child actresses for the present Paramount star.

William Powell worked for Cohan in "The King," with Leo Dietrichstein. Lowell Sherman played in several Cohan plays, and is best remembered for his work in "The Tavern" during the Chicago engagement.

Joan Blondell was in Cohan's production of "Sporting Blood"; Allen Dinehart was with him in "Two Fellows and a Girl" and others; Louise Dressler played in Cohan's revues, and Mary Eaton got her first New York job in Cohan's "The Royal Vagabond."

Among the others in Hollywood pictures today who worked in Cohan stage productions before entering films are: James Rennie, Olive Tell, Marjorie Rambeau, Johnny Arthur, Edmund Breese, James Bradbury, Tyler Brooke, George Fawcett, Elliott Nugent, Hale Hamilton, and Lawrence Grant.

"Faithless" is a story of the struggles and tortures a woman will go through for the man she really loves. This picture is, by far, the best picture Tallulah Bankhead has appeared in to date. She plays her role superbly as does Montgomery who plays opposite her. The remaining members of the strong cast are excellent in their parts.

On the same program we are offering an exceptionally fine unit of short subjects. Among them are the latest Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy comedy, "Scram," and the famous Boswell Sisters in "When Its Sleepy Time Down South." To complete this outstanding show we have a sports reel and the latest Paramount News.

"REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM"

TO HAVE LOCAL SHOWING SOON

Marian Nixon Will Have Title Role With Ralph Bellamy As Dr Ladd—
Production Directed By Alfred Santell

Rebecca, the imaginative little girl whose name came out of Ivanhoe and who lived at Sunnybrook Farm, has long been the favorite role of the greatest stars of the stage. For the modern Fox sound version of the immortal classic, to be shown at Town Hall Theatre, Northfield, next Monday, October 31, Marian Nixon, whose personality has carried her to new screen heights, was chosen to portray the character that to millions is symbolic of optimism.

Conceived originally as the heroine of a series of short stories by Kate Douglas Wiggin, "Rebecca" was made into a stage play by the author in collaboration with Charlotte Thompson.

Director Alfred Santell re-created the renowned Farm of Sunnybrook in the present production just as it appeared in the pages of the original book, in the picturesque sleepy farming country near Santa Cruz, California. There, far away from the artificialities of studio life and influence, the entire cast lived for weeks enacting the romantic drama that has captured the imaginations of millions.

The plot deals with the experience of an imaginative, impulsive girl who leaves her beloved Sunnybrook to live with her elderly maiden aunts, the very pillars of respectability in a Maine village. Her penchant for adopting everybody's troubles wins the immediate disapproval of the aunts but strikes quickly at the heart and sympathy of Dr. Adam Ladd, who befriends her from her first day in the village.

Bellamy Has Male Lead
Ralph Bellamy, tall blue-eyed leading man of many recent Fox successes, portrays the kindly, understanding character of Dr. Ladd, while May Marsh, who recently renewed her screen career in "Over the Hill," is seen as Aunt Jane, the younger and more sympathetic of the two aunts. Aunt Miranda, whose hard-shelled surface of New England reserve is the last to be won over by Rebecca's irresistible personality, is faithfully enacted by Louise Closser Hale in what is said to be her best performance to date.

Other characters of note in the picture are Alan Hale, as the eccentric radical; Sarah Padden, the kind-hearted woman who wants to adopt the child; Ronald Harria, lovable two-year-old who nearly steals the picture in his first screen role, and scores of others.

May Marsh, one of the brightest stars of past screen history, and Marian Nixon, one of today's film luminaries, contribute their individual talents in important roles in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," romantic drama from Fox.

They called her scape-grace!

Twenty Two Killed By Autos In State

Twenty-two persons were killed by motor vehicles in Massachusetts the past week. This is 12 more than in the week before and five less than in the same period a year ago, Morgan T. Ryan, registrar of motor vehicles, reported Monday.

"It is only too evident that October, in spite of all our safety drives, still continues to be the danger month of the year with November running a close second," Mr. Ryan said.

The total deaths so far this year from motor vehicles is 633 as compared with 678 at this time last year.

Of those killed the past week 10 were pedestrians, seven motorists, three grade crossing victims, one a motorcycle rider and the other a roller skater. There were eight child victims compared with five a year ago.

Auto Registration Is Considerably Less

Registration of motor vehicles in Massachusetts is off about 77,750 compared with last year.

There were registered last month, 21,768 vehicles as compared with 24,888 in September a year ago. The income in fees diminished from $295,081.15 in September 1931, to $275,361.01 in September this year.

For the 10 months ending Sept. 30 there were issued 884,972 registration certificates with 102,563 re-issues, making a net of 782,409 cars and trucks. The corresponding figures for last year were 962,717 certificates, 144,924 re-issues and a net of 817,793.

The state's income from license and registration fees to Sept. 30 was $5,805,862.89, a loss of $268,077.98.

The New England Bank Management Conference was held in the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston last Friday following a meeting of the stockholders of the Federal Reserve Bank which was held at that institution on Thursday. Nearly all the banks in the District were represented.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Malovin are preparing to close Mt. Grace Inn for the winter and will leave for Boston about the first of November to spend the winter.

Fourteen names have been added to the voting list at the last registration.

On November 5, Rosina Willis Lyman, who lives with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Lyman in Warwick will be 95 years old. Mrs. Lyman was born in Winchester, N. H., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Willis. Most of her younger life was spent in Keene, N. H., and during her later life she resided in Boston. She was married to Edward E. Lyman, who for a number of years was a manufacturer of soap and later, glue. After his retirement 33 years ago, the couple went to Warwick to live and she has since lived there. Mr. Lyman died in 1906. Mrs. Lyman has been in ill health for the past 12 years and for the past six years has been practically helpless. Although her eyesight and hearing have been failing, Mrs. Lyman's mind continues keen. All her life she has been a great reader and the impairment of her eyesight has been a keen disappointment for that reason.

The Community Club will hold their regular fortnightly dance at Northfield Town Hall Saturday evening October 29th. Music by Jillsens Orchestra. Adv.
